Miners Balloting on Agreement To-day

Referendum by Pit Head Ballot To Secure Opinion on Two-Year Period of Agreement

On March 31 the present two-year agreement between Coleman Miners Association and the International and McGillivray companies expires. Negotiating committees representing the workers of each company have discussed the proposed new agreement with General Manager G. Kellock during the past two weeks, and as a result on Sunday submitted their report to a general meeting in the community hall. No recommendation it is understood was made by the committees regarding the length of time the agreement is to run, one or two years, and after discussion it was decided to take a closed ballot with the question: "Are you in favor of proposed agreement for a period of two years?" The question is to be answered by marking Yes or No. Following the result of the ballot, it is presumed the committees will submit their report to the mine managements. There are about 800 workers entitled to vote, and at each mine the appointed officers will issue the ballots and the count will be made this evening.

Coleman Miners Association, organized in 1932, following the break-up of the Mine Workers Union of Canada as far as Coleman was concerned, has since then appointed its committees from each mine to negotiate with the managements, and on the expiry of each two-year-term agreements have been renewed with little change and on a mutually satisfactory basis.

Town Council Debates Leakage Water System

Expense of Pumping Shows Heavy Increase Which May Affect Rates Now in Force

A meeting of the town council held on Tuesday evening was attended by Mayor Pattinson, Councillors Allan, Antrobus, Borrow, Chapman, Hayson and Plante.

A letter from W. C. Miller, of the Immigration department, asked for the council's opinion as to admission to Coleman from Roumania of a man's wife. The husband is at present working in the local mines, and in order to comply with immigration regulations, an endorsement from the town council is required. Constable Antle was instructed to get a report on the case.

Concerning this, councillors were of the opinion that they wished to be fair, yet at the same time they wished to be satisfied that the husband is in a position to maintain his wife and not become a charge on the municipality.

Re the application of a party recently granted an old-age pension, who wants the relief grant continued for his wife, a letter was read from the provincial relief commissioner advising the town the course to take in the matter. On motion the letter was filed.

A communication from E. D. Battum, town auditor, of Calgary, was the basis of considerable debate. He pointed out that having examined the annual statement of Coleman Light & Water Co., as of July 16, 1936, pumping costs showed an increase of about $3,000, also thawing expense was heavily increased. He went into details on phases of the report, summarizing his survey of the report by stating that it indicated a heavy leakage in the system and would inevitably lead to an increase of rates unless checked.

Mayor Pattinson stated that Mr. Battum had spent considerable time and had been of good service to the town in connection with the reduced rates secured two years ago. His statement revealed to the council that steps would have to be taken to remedy the waste that is indicated, and various councillors suggested steps that should be taken. Among them was the laying of a new outlet pipe from the dam, and the construction of another storage dam. Councillor Hayson was quite indignant over the waste, and stated that it was his opinion that it got the annual report of the company promptly so that it could be thoroughly examined. The mayor suggested that a survey should be undertaken by an engineer to advise the best course to follow. In the meantime Mr. L. Lindoe, civil engineer of the company, communicated with by telephone, advised he would meet Mayor Pattinson and Mr. Antrobus at 9 a.m. Wednesday to discuss the matter with them to find if steps could be taken to overcome the waste, and check up on the capacity of the pump. Mr. Borrow had it figured that in comparison with the usual supply needed for an average house, the system was losing hundreds of thousands of gallons daily, which had to be paid for in pumping

Coleman Homing Society Organized 1937

First Flight Will Take Place Early in May—Northern Routes Up to 900 Miles Airline to be Used

Meeting in the fire hall, the members of the Homing Society elected the following executives: Charles Makin, president; Fred Beddington, secretary.

Efforts will be made to organize a federated race with Drumheller, Lethbridge, Bellevue and Coleman clubs entering birds. Calgary society will advise if the meeting to organize this will be held in that city or Lethbridge. C. Makin and F. Beddington will represent Coleman.

Flights proposed are from—Fort Chippewan, 625 air miles; Fort McMurray, 900 miles. These distances are between Coleman and those points.

A number of local flights will be made, starting about May 1st, weather permitting. For the northern flights, the birds will be transported to the far north by airplane.

Keen interest is taken not only among pigeon fanciers, but by the general public in these flights, the Coleman birds having accomplished some remarkable flights in competition with those of other clubs.

The club had its start about eight years ago when John Anderson, since returned to Scotland, brought out some birds which were descended from pigeons which had been used during the war to carry messages on the western front. Coleman club has always compared most favorably with Alberta clubs.

SCHOOL SUPPLEMENT PROVED INTERESTING

Many readers of the school opening supplement of The Journal expressed appreciation of the interesting material contained therein and particularly the letter from Mr. Robinson, the first secretary of Coleman school trustees. Quite a number purchased copies to send to relatives and friends. If further copies are required by readers, they can be supplied from this office, and will be sent to any address in the world for ten cents, including cost of mailing.

costs, and which would increase the rates. Mr. Battum's report will be taken up again at the next meeting.

Mike Savik, employed by Sam Saffo, appeared before the council to ask for a letter of recommendation to the immigration authorities so that his wife could be admitted to Canada. He had lived here since 1933, and for some time prior to that had farmed at Burma. On motion of Antrobus-Chapman his request was granted.

Concerning the Coronation of King George VI, the mayor suggested that a committee of the council notify all churches, schools and trustees, fraternal lodges and local organizations that a meeting of representatives would be called to organize a fitting program. Mr. Plante stated he had been asked by the Elks' Lodge to find out what would be done, and the mayor reported he had received various enquiries. Mayor Pattinson and Mr. Allan were appointed as a committee to arrange a meeting.

PUSSYFOOTING HAS CLAWS

Pussyfooting is profitless. Fear of public consequences from publication of unpopular news usually gets its reward in consequences far beyond any foreseen by the workers. American newspapers which kept the lid tight on the Teapot Dome and Veterans' Bureau scandals, which thought it useless and dangerous to apply the brakes to the 1928-1929 boom, and which hush-hushed the 1932-1933 banking crisis, can testify that their policy was futile, if not worse. Government, organized as a democratic society, no longer dares behold the Herald of Evil Tidings. Democracy can laugh, proceed to fix the trouble . . . and go on to the next crisis.—Editor and Publisher.

Four Nations Start Blockade To Isolate Spanish Civil War

London. Warships steamed about the Spanish coasts as first concrete evidence of joint international efforts to isolate the Iberian peninsula's civil war.

The sea patrol was composed of men-of-war from Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

With this phase of "hands off" activity actually under way, the full non-intervention committee was expected to meet this week to consider a Valencian government protest against alleged participation of Italian troops in the Spanish insurrection at Guadalquivir, scene of heavy fighting for several days.

The committee faces also the solution of many details involved in both the land and sea patrols of Spain. The land patrol plan calls for neutral observers on the Franco-Spanish and the Portuguese-Spanish borders.

The three supervisors of the 27-nation non-intervention scheme meet here to settle details of their respective duties. Admiral M. H. Van Duden, former Dutch East Indies fleet commander, is director of the program.

Various countries still must formulate orders for their merchant shipping to comply with regulations designed to stem the flow of men, arms and supplies to both sides.

The committee, it was said, hopes to have 60 ships in the sea patrol within a few weeks.

The patrol boats were:

Great Britain: The Blisney coast from the French frontier to Cape Basto, west of Gijon; the southern coast from the Portuguese frontier to Cape de Gata, near Almeria.

France: The northwest coast from Cape Basto to the Portuguese border; the coast of Spanish Morocco, and the Balearic Islands of Majorca and Ibiza.

Germany: The Mediterranean coast from Cape de Gata to Cape Orpesa, north of Valencia.

Italy: The Mediterranean coast from Cape Orpesa to the French border, and the Balearic Island of Minorca.

Committee regulations set up a system of control ports where shipping bound for Spain will be required to halt for inspection. Committee agents either will certify that no arms or volunteers are aboard or will accompany the vessel to Spain.

Britain will not protest direct to the Spanish insurgent junta against alleged recent arrivals of Italian and German troops and war supplies. It was said. Instead it will go straight to the sources, presumably with a warning such intervention constitutes a grave threat to European peace.

Officials were frankly worried over the increased activity of Italian forces in the civil war, particularly on the Guadalquivir front.

Spanish Ambassador Pablo de Azcarate called at the foreign office to draw Britain's attention to the aid Italy is reported giving to the current insurgent offensive against Madrid. French Ambassador Charles Corbin discussed the question there with Foreign Secretary Eden.

Granting Of Franchise To Orientals In B. C. Opposed In Commons

Ottawa. Granting of the franchise to Orientals in British Columbia might advance their economic assimilation but could not break down their racial characteristics, Thomas Reid (Lib., New Westminster) declared before the commons committee on the election and franchise acts.

"Are we in Canada prepared to allow an undesirable race of people to control the economic and political life, if not of Canada, then that of British Columbia, the dangers of which have become more apparent in that province during the past number of years?" he asked.

The racial discrimination in British Columbia was essentially a provincial matter, he contended, since the matter, he contended, since the people of British Columbia were the ones directly affected. They had decided not to participate in the vote in provincial elections, but repre-

Subsidy To Municipalities

Ottawa. Government To Implement Promises In Budget Speech

Toronto. The Ontario government moved to implement Premier Mitchell Hepburn's budget speech promise of a subsidy to municipalities equivalent to one mill on their tax rates.

Hon. David Croft, minister of municipal affairs, introduced the Ontario subsidy bill. It was revealed power to direct municipalities as to how the subsidies shall be passed on to the individual taxpayer will be reserved to the cabinet.

The preamble made it clear the subsidy must not be regarded as a permanent measure. It said the government anticipated a survey soon to be made of provincial and municipal taxation fields, would make possible relief of real estate from some taxation, but in the meantime the government wanted to aid to this end.

Mr. Croft also brought in measures to enable the government to pay municipal shares of old age pensions and mothers' allowances.

Misleading Publicity

Traps Steps Be Taken To Stop Dishonest Brokerage Practices

Ottawa. Dishonest brokerage practices must be stopped in Canada in the promotion of the Dominion's mining and other resources, Senator Arthur Sauve (Cons., Rigaud), declared in the senate.

"Let us stop dishonest exploitation of the public and wage war against all such abuses," he urged. In order to obtain a rational development of the country's natural resources, "we must base the confidence of our people on the solid rock of scientific truth and seek technical men who are prepared to place their knowledge at the disposal of the state."

He said all governments should exercise "a close supervision of all activities tending or pretending to develop our natural resources."

Senator Sauve was speaking on his resolution for an extended Canadian mining policy, the taking of steps against dishonest brokerage and fallacious prospectuses and misleading publicity.

C.W.N.A. Meeting

Annual Gathering Of Weekly Newspaper Association To Be Held At Halifax

Ottawa. The board of directors of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association at their semi-annual meeting here decided to hold this year's annual convention in Halifax for the second or third week in August.

A special committee of the board had a conference with Finance Minister C. A. Dunning, Agriculture Minister J. G. Gardiner and Secretary of State Fernand Rinfret. Advertising, printing and general publicity matters were under discussion.

S. J. Doman of Alameda, Sask., acted as spokesman for the committee, which included President L. J. Bennett, Carman, Man.; Cameron MacIntosh, member of parliament for North Battleford, Sask.; S. N. Wynn, Yorkton, Sask., and W. A. Bourne, Hartney, Man.

Imperial Conference

Defence, Constitutional Questions And Trade To Be Discussed

Ottawa. Defence, constitutional questions and trade form the pattern for the work of the imperial conference which meets in London, May 14.

In the agenda of the conference, made public in all the empire capitals, foreign policy and defence comprise the first main heading. In the 1930 conference it was second, preceded by inter-imperial relations and followed by economic questions.

"As regards foreign affairs and defence," said the text, "the agenda will include an examination of the general attention together with any relevant questions of less general character which may require consideration."

International status of members of the British commonwealth, and treaty procedure are the chief divisions of the general topic of constitutional questions.

A general review of the progress of empire trade will be involved in the discussion on trade, shipping and air communications. Questions arising out of the Ottawa trade agreements are to be dealt with by separate discussions between independent governments apart from the conference itself. The agenda says it is hoped an opportunity will appear for discussion of empire migration.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King will head Canada's delegation to the conference, but other members are still to be announced.

The conference proper will begin two days after the coronation of King George, but preparatory work will already have been completed. Arrangements have been made for study of constitutional questions by experts in advance.

Idea Voted Down

Compulsory Registration And Voting Not Feasible For Canada

Ottawa. Compulsory voting and compulsory registration were unanimously voted down by the Commons special committee on the Elections and Franchise Act.

A vote was taken without discussion additional to that at the committee's previous session, when Australia's experience with the compulsory exercise of the franchise was studied.

It was felt that the compulsory system was inapplicable in the Canadian climate, that the increased cost entailed would not be justified by the comparatively small increase in votes polled in countries where it is now in operation.

Image Stolen

1500-Year-Old Miniature Taken From Japanese Temple

Mara, Japan. Police were mobilized for a nation-wide search for a 1,500-year-old miniature image missing from the celebrated Todaiji temple.

The eight-inch image, of silver encrusted with gems, apparently was stolen by thieves. It surmounted a larger figure of Buddha, considered the oldest and most precious in Japan.

The miniature image was set in the gold crown of the Buddha, embellished with 20,000 jewels and valued by temple authorities at 50,000,000 yen ($14,250,000).

Ministers From Dominions

May Eventually Be Included In British Cabinet States London Paper

London. The Daily Mail says that when Neville Chamberlain becomes prime minister he may include among his cabinet ministers a Dominion statesman as a representative of the empire.

Stanley Bruce, Australian high commissioner in London, and General Jan Smuts of South Africa were mentioned as likely possibilities.

The new minister, the Daily Mail says, would probably become chairman of an imperial defence board, to which dominion representatives would be appointed to take a share in the formation of empire defence strategy.

"Imperial questions of trade and defence are assuming increasing importance in the government's eyes and it is understood the defence board idea is to be discussed at the imperial conference," the newspaper says. "The defence board would have broader powers than the present committee on imperial defence."

Sees Economic Crash

Steel Magnate Fears Trouble Will Overtake Britain Within

Ottawa. Lord Riverdale, British industrialist, told interviewers that within two years there would be danger of an economic crash in the United Kingdom.

The steel magnate, formerly Sir Arthur Balfour, said "times are too good" in England, prices are rising too high and the great re-armament program "has come on the top of legitimate business" instead of being undertaken a few years ago "when it would have done some good."

Nevertheless, he added, the re-armament program would help sustain the boom for the next two years. After that reaction was inevitable in his view.

Originator Of Sit-Down Strike

London. Origin of "sit-down" strikes can be traced to Gandhi's non-resistance tactics of a decade ago, in the opinion of Thomas Rogers, former member of the staff of the Bombay Statesman, largest English language newspaper in India, now a London resident.

New Locarno Pact Seen By Britain In Germany's Reply

Berlin. Solemn repudiation of war between Germany and France, with Great Britain and Italy as guarantors, would be the essential clause in a new Locarno treaty acceptable to Germany, it was reported here as the reich replied to Britain's Locarno note of last November. Contents of the reply was not issued.

A sharp about-turn in German foreign policy was reported, with the reich no longer demanding formal French repudiation of the mutual assistance pact with Russia or other eastern allies.

Instead, it was said, Berlin now asks only that Paris renounce participation in an anti-German "confederacy."

The automatic features of the French alliances with eastern powers now stands as the chief obstacle to a new western European settlement, from the German viewpoint, it was understood.

This was taken to mean the reich would ask France to renounce those portions of its pacts which obligate it to declare immediate and automatic war in defence of its eastern allies.

The reich, it was reported, will propose instead that the merits of each individual case be submitted to British and Italian arbitrators.

This report was regarded by diplomats as of tremendous significance. In the past Germany has always attacked the French-Russian pact as inconsistent with Locarno. In repudiating the Locarno treaty last March by sending troops into the Rhineland, the Nazi government took the stand the pact had already been violated by France when that country allied itself with the Soviet.

The German reply to the British memorandum of last autumn calling for new Locarno negotiations was sent to London aboard a fast plane after it had been turned over to Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador here.

Semi-official spokesmen declared, however, the document will not be made public since it is a phase in confidential negotiations of several months' standing among the chancelleries of Europe.

They contented themselves with characterizing it as "an important new reich-contribution to peace" and took the attitude it will serve to show who are the true enemies of war in western Europe.

Asks If Dominions Prepared To Assist In Arms Program

London. New details of British naval construction and strategy, a new picture of the thoroughness with which the government is carrying out its rearmament program, were unfolded in the House of Commons by Sir Samuel Hoare.

Introducing the 1937 naval estimates, the first lord of the admiralty revealed that by the end of the year Britain would have under construction the "remarkable number" of 148 new ships, that anti-aircraft weapons were being produced "on a scale of precision undreamt of in 1918," that plans would be ready to repel any attack on British shipping in "narrow seas," and that the Singapore naval base was nearing completion.

After the speech, Rt. Hon. A. V. Alexander, former Labor first lord of the admiralty, asked if the Dominions had been consulted concerning the general rearmament program.

He further asked if they were prepared to contribute something to the enormous burden to the taxpayer involved in the government's program. "If there is danger of war in the Pacific," he said, "the Dominions might find themselves in a different frame of mind from what they have been in recently."

Lord Stanley, parliamentary secretary for the admiralty, said the Dominions were being kept in the closest touch through their representatives at meetings of the committee for imperial defence. Alexander called the government's rearmament policy "unilateral" and warned that "along that road lies the approach to national madness, national suicide, instead of any real preservation of the empire."

Samuel sought once and for all to still claims that naval power was being outmoded by aircraft. Today, he declared, every sensible stud-

Some sources said the reported change in foreign policy was the result of advice given to Reich-chancellor Hitler three days ago by the moderate faction in his cabinet, including War Minister Von Blomberg, Foreign Minister Von Neurath and Economic Minister Hjalmar Schacht.

These statements, according to this version, insisted that international public opinion demanded an immediate pacific gesture by Germany in the form of an expressed willingness to open conversations toward a western pact.

Diplomats and German officials were extremely reticent on the note's contents, but it was reported the reich is unwilling to go beyond a solemn repudiation of war with France to be guaranteed by Italy and Britain.

It was said further that Germany is unfavorably disposed toward a new pact based on mutual assistance.

With regard to Belgium, the reich declares itself ready to guarantee that country's security to the same extent as the other big western powers.

Ships In Grain Race

Fortune Taking New Wheat From Australia To Europe

London. Fourteen great windjammers beat their way along the Cape Horn route in the annual race from Australian ports to bring the new wheat crop to Great Britain and the European continent.

Most of the world's well-known large sailing vessels are engaged in the race. Usually the voyage takes from 90 to 120 days.

The ship, the Abraham Rydberg, started as early as January 12 from Walleroo. The C. B. Pedersen, which like the Rydberg is a Swedish-owned, steel, four-masted bark - put out from Port Gorman January 23. Twelve other craft started at various times up to March 3.

France Sells Prison Ship

Paris. France has discarded her famous floating jail—the prison ship La Martinique which has carried more than 10,000 convicts to Devil's Island since 1921. The ship was turned over to a commercial shipping concern. No more convicts will be sent to the prison settlement, the government has decreed.

BECAUSE IT'S OVENIZED

The new, exclusive Swift method of smoking called Ovenizing, makes Premium so delicately tender and fine-flavoured that parboiling is unnecessary. Whether it's a whole or half ham, or a center slice! Insist on the genuine Swift's Premium... with the name Swift in brown dots down the whole length of the ham. Swift Canadian Co., Limited.

A genuine Swift's Premium Ham can be prepared this easy way, without parboiling:

Place a whole or half Premium Ham in a roaster. Add 2 cups of water, and cover the roaster... Bake in a slow oven (325°), allowing 21 minutes a lb. for a large whole ham; 25 minutes a lb. for smaller (up to 12 lb.) hams or half hams... When ham is done, remove from oven. Lift off rind. Score surface and dot with cloves; rub with mixture of 1/2 cup brown sugar and 1 tbs. flour. Brown uncovered, for 20 minutes in a moderate oven (400°).

SWIFT'S PREMIUM BACON is OVENIZED too... marvellous flavour and tenderness for your Easter Breakfast table!

NOTES AND COMMENTS

WIN and the world wins with you, puts you on the back. Lose, and oh, what a difference with some. Coleman's senior hockey club fought its way to the finals in the provincial championship series, and the acclaim of the mob was with them all the way, right up to the third game against Edmonton Dominions, when they cracked up in the third period.

IT WAS a setback which might have occurred to any team, amateur or professional. Coleman received more sport publicity from its hockey team than from any other source during the year, and on the other hand it received some not so good from disgruntled fans who could not take a loss gracefully. Win or lose, to be a good sport is the spirit which animates all true sportsmen.

THE JOURNAL, like many others, was disappointed in not seeing a play-off game here, but the executive cannot be blamed altogether, for under the rules by which amateur hockey is carried on, they have to keep a careful eye on the box office and act accordingly. It meant a loss to the lessee of the rink, whose main hope of making some money is from the percentage the rink receives from the games. Calgary with its artificial ice is the big drawing card, combined with certainty that play can proceed on scheduled dates regardless of weather conditions. The smaller towns which may climb to the finals usually get a poor deal when it comes to the play-offs, because of disadvantages of weather conditions. When Coleman played in the intermediate championship series, local fans got a far better show because the play-offs were not gobbled up by the cities.

ACCORDING to an ardent Social Creditor, Premier Aberhart has a deeper purpose in view in going to the Coronation than just to represent Alberta. He is going to expose to the people of the old country what lies the newspapers there have been telling of Social Credit in Alberta. Why not take Professor Orthodox Anonymous along and give the people a real show, which should out-rival even their favorite Punch and Judy shows for the young folks. The English manager of a famous "exhibition of magic" recently stated that "children of all ages are still ready to pay good money to be deceived, and what is more important still, that they are still as easily deceived as ever they were." Doesn't Alberta know it!

FROM the many daily and weekly newspapers coming to

The Journal office, reports of organization meetings of committees to fittingly celebrate the Coronation of King George VI. are noticed. It shows a general desire on the part of the people to observe the event in appropriate style. Many local enquiries have been made, therefore the decision of the mayor and council to call a meeting of representatives of all organizations is timely and will, we believe, be approved whole-heartedly by the citizens. The invisible ties of Empire are strengthened by keeping to the fore the significance of such an occasion as the Coronation.

TWO or three years ago, Mayor Pattinson and E. D. Batrum, town auditor, spent considerable time in convincing the Utilities Board of the province that a much lower rate could be put into force for light and water by extending the time in which the mortgage bonds of the company should be repaid. All users reaped the benefit by light bills being cut almost in half, and water rates by 20 per cent. Now their good efforts have struck a snag in finding out that pumping costs and other expenses of the service have increased to such an alarming extent that unless these faults are remedied, an increase over the present rates is imperative. Useless waste of water has often been protested against by the mayor and combined with leaky pipes, it seems that some of the benefits secured by the ratepayers will be lost. The impression some have that it doesn't matter how long the tap or the garden hose is left running will get a jolt.

MR AND BARNUM

Yes, Premier Aberhart is frank, very frank. Further evidence of that is found in evidence now embedded in court records at Vancouver. One of his former associates in the now defunct Aberhart Social Credit movement in the neighbouring province testified, under oath, that Mr. Aberhart instructed his workers there last year: "Remember that the average mentality is that of a 13-year old child. . . . Talk to them about financial bondages." Then, of course, meaning "our people" (in a soft voice)—the public—you and I! In other words, suckers! Little comment is necessary. But now that we know just what our premier thinks of the dear taxpayers of British Columbia, we might draw an easy conclusion on his opinion of Albertans. Truth often hurts, but we must admit it worked in Alberta in 1935; to the extent of giving Mr. Aberhart complete control of the province, its good name, purse strings, future integrity and all.

It seems too bad that Albertans don't take enough interest in their biggest business, the provincial government, to express their views in writing. A three-cent stamp used by a sufficient number of people can stop anything, or start anything, if it is only put to use.

Sundays bring evidence that one side of the electorate is aware of the power of letter writing. Why do those who oppose governments fail to express their opinions, except to their friends and neighbors? If they would take half the time writing they do grouching, they would make governments realize they were alive, and that democracy is something real, not a myth. If reports are correct, Mr. Aberhart

METROPOLITAN LIFE BUSINESS SHOWS GROWTH

Insurance in Force Increased — Welfare Work Benefits — Policyholders

OTTAWA, March, 8. — Economic conditions in this continent are reflected in the report of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, every fifth person in Canada and the United States being a policyholder in this mutual company — and a general improvement in business is apparent in the 70th Annual Statement released today. The 28,400,000 policyholders increased their insurance protection in Metropolitan Life by over one billion dollars during 1936, to a total of $21,510,975,784 — the largest amount of life insurance ever in force in any company. Policyholders of the Metropolitan and their beneficiaries received in 1936 for the fifth successive year over half a billion dollars as payments on policies — over one hundred million dollars will be returned to them during 1937 as dividends on their policies — assets increased in 1936 by $250,890,290 to a total of $4,494,701,772 — and satisfactory progress is reported in all departments of the company.

HARRY D. WRIGHT
Second Vice-President and Manager for Canada, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, who reports increased investments in the Dominion.

Second Vice-President Harry D. Wright, Manager for Canada, commenting on the Canadian business in the company, stated that in the Dominion alone, payments to policyholders and their beneficiaries in 1936 totalled $28,592,000. He added that life insurance companies in Canada during the last five years had distributed to the people of the Dominion over $500,000 per day, which illustrates the very real measure of security afforded thirty Canadians through life insurance. The company's total of life insurance in force in Canada has been increased to $1,065,006,291. Of this amount $52,881,421 is in the Ordinary Department, which has policyholders of $1,000 and upward; $78,072,947 is in the Group Department, insuring groups of employees; and $24,101,583 is in the Industrial Department, premiums being paid weekly or monthly.

Metropolitan continues its welfare work and in Canada during the past year nurses made 370,000 visits to homes of company policyholders, while 4,710,000 pieces of literature were distributed in the interests of wider education on health subjects.

Mr. Wright reported that Metropolitan investments in the Dominion increased during the year to a total of $270,965,997, and that in all major aspects of the business in Canada the year 1936 was most satisfactory.

Referring to the company's total business in Canada and the United States, the year's report shows a gain of life insurance in force of $1,041,626,208. This gain is reflected in all departments and represents high points in the history of the company. The total insurance in force is now $21,510,975,784, of which $15,000,000,000 is in the Ordinary Department. The Industrial Department has 34% or $7,175,751,760, and Group Insurance accounts for 15% with a total of $3,238,129,000.

Assets increased $250,890,290 in 1936 and totalled $4,494,701,772 on December 31st last. On this date the surplus funds were $278,424,067, and the contingency reserve was $48,000,000.

For the fifth successive year, the Metropolitan disbursed more than half a billion dollars to its policyholders and beneficiaries in death claims, matured endowments, dividends, disability benefits and other payments. More than two-thirds of the total was paid to living policyholders — a powerful refutation of the saying that, in life insurance, "you have to die to win".

An idea of the Metropolitan's business can be conveyed by reducing some of these annual figures to a daily basis. For instance, the daily average of payments to beneficiaries and policyholders in addition to reserve was $2,450,501. An average of 2,214 claims were paid every day; and every day saw an average of 17,284 life insurance policies issued and revived; and $9,818,422 in life insurance saved.

Metropolitan Life Notes

In connection with the publication in this issue of the annual statement of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, it is of interest to note that Mr. J. H. Peel, local agent, finds business is well maintained in the towns of the Crow's Nest Pass. Besides a large number of industrial policies among the mine workers, he has increased the term and other policies during the time he has been local representative here, and his area in volume of business compares most favorably with any in the western provinces.

Every cake of Royal is sealed in an airtight wrapper free from contamination

THERE'S one infallible rule in bread-baking—your yeast must be full strength. Weak yeast can cause spoiled dough, soggy grainy texture, an unpleasant "off-taste".

That's why it's important to insist on yeast that is protected against loss of strength—every cake sealed in an airtight wrapper. Royal is the only yeast that has this special protection. It stays fresh, full strength and free from impurities.

For fifty years, Royal has stood for dependability. Today 7 out of 8 Canadian housewives demand Royal when they bake with a dry yeast. They know it is reliable.

Don't take chances with weak, uncertain yeasts. Be sure to buy Royal.

THE YELLOW BRIAR

A Story of the Irish on the Canadian Countryside

By PATRICK SLATER

By arrangement with Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto.

It seems her father is a surgeon, practising in Baltimore or some place down there. Her mother, who died at the time of the child's birth, had been a Canadian girl from near Estevan in Southern Saskatchewan, who went south, quite young, to train as a nurse. And those Canadian girls that train for nurses? Well, you know what nurses are? Of course, they are wholesome, capable young persons, but I notice they wear nifty little affairs on their heads; and they wear them, I figure, so that they can set their caps for likely young doctors, who are starting up in good practice.

Anyway, the big car had crossed the border at Niagara Falls on route to Montreal and points further east. The young lady had a notion to go fifty miles north from the lake to see what sort of a place it was among the hills that her mother's family had come from. And youth nowadays must be served—even if a bit impatiently. Some person in the neighborhood had referred to me as an historical landmark from which to take her bearings.

Yes, I told her, I had known her mother's family. I remembered her great, great-grandmother as a robust young woman. In fact, her mother had lived in this very house—not in the weather-beaten old place as it now is, but in the days of its youth and glory. I had come to work on the farm as a little lad fresh out from Ireland; and, on and off, I have lived on the place ever since. It is the only real home I ever had.

I took her around to see a yellow briar bush planted many years ago by a little girl who wore hoop skirts on Sundays. The little gardener, I told her, had been her mother's mother. As good luck had it, the season being early, the yellow rose-bush was a mass of waxy blossoms and unfolding buds.

Of course she was tremendously interested; but the big car seemed to get impatient. "And where were those folk of mine buried?" she inquired.

I told her she would notice the little graveyard as they drove out to the pike. It now stood, deserted like, in the corner of a pasture field; but at one time its stones had nestled around a Methodist meeting-house.

"But if you go in, be careful of those sheer stockings," said I, "because we don't take much care of these little burial places up this way."

She asked me if she might take a bundle of the yellow roses. I cut off a bunch of the branches with my jack-knife, and wrapped a sheet of newspaper about the prickly stems. "Put them on the old woman's grave," I suggested, "but don't shake them, because the petals blow and scatter. Your old kinswoman, I must warn you, was a very orderly person."

"Yes," she said to me, "you seize the flower, its bloom is shed." "Anyhow," I replied, "briar blossoms never feel the ugliness of age." The girl lifted up her quiet eyes to the limestone hills whence came the strength of my farm.

"Doesn't that mean," she asked me, "that they must die in the beauty of their youth?"

"Then they are beloved of the gods," said I.

And we walked back toward the car.

"And for goodness sake, don't leave The Globe newspaper there," I cautioned her, "because that old Irish lady of yours had no use at all—at all—for George Brown's paper or the Reform Party."

The big car slipped down the lane as noiselessly as the shadow of the passing cloud. I chuckled at the thought of the fit old relative would have thrown had any young female of the connection appeared before her in the sheer, curve-shouldered nakedness of the weathered young lady of Baltimore who was taking flowers down to place on her grave.

But, of course, the old body had been sleeping these many years in a peaceful twilight beneath the clover and the daisies. Not, mark you, that I think shifting customs and styles have any effect on the unchanging heart of woman. A bit of rouge and plucked eyebrows seem more artificial to me than bustles were and the swish of ladies' skirts across the grass.

I was startled by the visit of that strange young girl to the old Ontario farm. In the span of my lifetime, I got to thinking, I had seen the huge pocket of British territory that nestles within the arms of the Great Lakes—a fertile land largely in extent than the republic of France—cleared of its hardwood forests and turned into fruitful farm lands. The hardworking men and women from the British Isles who did this great job were lovers of the soil and they hungered for homes of their own. From their firesides I have seen great waves of young life go out in search of fame and an easier fortune. One would travel beyond Greenland's icy mountains and farther than India's coral strand to find a locality in which a father has not told his son how hard "the old man" made a fellow work on the farm back in Ontario. And I have lived long enough to know that the farm houses of the Scottish and Irish pioneers will pass into the hands of other races and breeds of men whose children have remained lovers of the soil.

I have thought several times since of the quiet-spoken, hard-working women, out of whose decent lives that young girl had come; and every time I think of them, I feel inclined to dodge around and have a look at that simple, old-fashioned, yellow rose-bush. It has stood out there, these many years, undisturbed and unprotected in a wind-swept place; it has learned to suffer and endure—and it still endures. It keeps itself neat and tidy, because Nature mends by subtle art the ravages of time. Apparently the old bush has always been well content with its location and station in life. There is no evidence that it has ever tried to spread or to encroach upon its neighbors. It is well equipped to protect its rights and dignity, and to prevent others from encroaching upon it. At ordinary times, it is a trim, healthy sort of a shrub and retiring in its nature; but when it shows its soul, the whole bush bursts suddenly into a magnificent bloom.

There were like qualities in the hearts of the Irish women who were pioneering in the timberlands of Upper Canada when Victoria began her long reign. In 1838, a young girl set up the first housekeeping on this farm. Her family were originally adherents of the Protestant Episcopal Church, and had settled as small farmers in County Armagh at the time Cromwell put the curse on Ireland. And I think, sometimes, that perhaps old Ireland also put a curse on them that settled within the pale. There was bred in their children's children a hard, silent, stubborn pride that became pitiable as it fell on evil days at the close of the Napoleonic wars.

A high birth rate and young folk who hung around home, instead of whistling themselves over the hills and far away, added greatly to the woes of the cabins and cottages of old Ireland.

—that mournful nation
With charmin' pinstrip nation
And hatin' each other for the love of God.

The result was rack renting and the splitting up of small land holdings. Owing to its overabundance, farm labor in that fertile land became less efficient than anywhere else in Europe.

The Irish Protestant families that pioneered in the backwoods of Upper Canada in the thirties were driven out of Ireland by forces as cruel and inexorable as the troops of bloody Cromwell. Their women folk had learned in Ireland to skimp and suffer, and still endure; but they had endured there in a grim and haughty silence. I never met one of them, in the early days, whose grandfather had not apparently been the proud possessor of an estate—supposed of four acres and a cow. These landed gentry had dined on potatoes and hake every day; but to keep up the family standard, they varied to hake and potatoes, the next. As for the rest of us in Ireland, we lived in those days on potatoes and point. You get that? The children stood around the table at mealtime, eating potatoes—boiled with the hake. On to get a flavor, they pointed to the tatties at the bit of salt berring their father ate. Nineteen years were the average lifespan in rural Ireland; and only one soul out of five passed the age of forty.

Reveals Startling Theory

Test Shows Serene Cook Can Make Good Biscuits

The United States Bureau of Home Economics has dashed out the startling theory that strong-arm tactics make tough biscuits. This means the cook can't manhandle the dough and expect a batch of tender bread for dinner.

The ladies of the bureau won't be quoted, but they don't deny they may hit on the answer to one of history's kitchen mysteries—why the same cook never makes the same kind of biscuits twice.

If getting a strange hold on the dough affects the biscuits-to-be, it doesn't take a government agency to point out the housewife's temper controls the whole business.

One who sweeps serenely into the kitchen at peace with the world—say, over the prospects of a new spring bonnet—naturally is going to be gentle with her dough. By the same logic, the woman who storms up to the stove in a peevish state to lose her wrath on the defenceless mass of flour.

The bureau conducted tests all over the place—but not with happy and angry cooks. Dough which received 15 to 18 gentle strokes gave tall, light, flaky tender biscuits.

Dough which received more than 18 strokes turned out close-grained, tough flat affairs.

The chemical explanation is that getting rough with the dough causes it to lose its elasticity. When it's time for the biscuit to rise, it stages a slide-down strike.

Works Way To Wedding

Shipping Strike Almost Spoiled Plans Of Young Englishman

Angus D. Vickers, son of Douglas Vickers of the well-known British family of that name, got to his wedding in Christchurch, New Zealand, by working his way.

This is how it all happened. Mr. Vickers had to get to Christchurch by Jan 23 for his marriage to Miss Phyllis Francis, a Christchurch girl, and he got as far as the Pacific Coast only to find the American shipping strike had tied up all available ships.

San Francisco showed a complete blank, so he went to Vancouver. There he learned that a small steamer, the Limerick, had sailed for New Zealand a short time before and could be reached at Honolulu with a little luck. Back he went to San Francisco, where he managed to secure a berth on an "Empress" liner which was visiting Honolulu en route to Japan, and at Honolulu he caught the Limerick by one day.

It began to look as if he would get there after all. Then the crew of the Limerick went on strike at Honolulu, and things looked black. But the officers of the ship decided to sail if the twelve passengers would act as members of the crew for the voyage. They all agreed.

For two weeks Mr. Vickers, along with the others, polished brass, washed down decks and did a hundred and one other menial jobs. The other members of the "crew" report that he worked cheerfully and well.

And he got to Christchurch in time for the wedding.

But he had to leave a lot of his wedding presents behind in San Francisco.

Rag-Picking De Luxe

Jews Are Excluded In Germany From This Profession

The lovely calling of rag-picking was classified by official Nazi edict among the professions from which Jews are excluded in Germany.

Henceforth only "100 per cent. Aryan" may browse about the streets and alleys of Berlin, picking up rags and rubbish.

At Berlin's rag-pickers are to be mobilized in the reich's four-year economic-sufficiency plan. They will be obliged to carry a badge of the national organization for the war against waste.

All generations are the same. First they are naughty; then they get fed-up and reform; then they scold the young for being as they were.

Little Helps For This Week

There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man, but God is faithful who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able, but will with the temptation make a way of escape that ye may be able to bear it. I. Cor. 10: 13-14.

You must believe no load of woe suddenly, "perhaps to you Nature for while we bear it, we can bear it."

Everything that happens either happens in such a way that we are formed by nature to bear it, or not formed to bear it. If then it happens in such a way that you can bear it, do not complain. But if it happens that you are not able to bear it, do not complain, for it will perish after it has consumed you. Remember however that you are formed by nature to bear everything, and it depends on your own opinion to make it endurable and tolerable by thinking it is in your duty to bear it patiently.

Not Greatly Impressed

Artist's Descriptive Powers Were Wasted On Farm Hand

The artist was painting a sunset—vivid red, with blue streaks and green splotches scattered over the canvas. A farm hand stopped and watched him.

"Ah," said the artist, looking up suddenly, "perhaps to you Nature has also opened up her sky pictures page by page? Have you seen the lambent flame of dawn leaping across the pellucid east? The red-stained sulphurous islets floating as if in a lake of fire in the west; the ragged clouds at midnight, black as ravens' wings, blotting out the shuddering moon?"

"No," replied the farm hand, "not since I stopped drinking."

CONSIDER THE COW

If your advertisement were in this space as many people would read it as are reading this. But your advertisement isn't here, and people do not worry whether you are selling real estate, gasoline, peanuts or popcorn.

Did you ever sit down in the pasture with a pall between your knees and milked?

Of course not. You know better than that.

Well, business is somewhat like a cow. You've got to go out after it and round it up. The fellow with the milk pail between his knees may get some milk, but the odds are in favor of the fellow who drives up the cow and feeds her.

Some kind of advertisement must be done if a business is to amount to anything. Either walking and talking or writing, or printing. But the least costly, most profitable and dignified way is by the regular newspaper—people pay for it. They value it and have faith in the advertisements in it.
